London, United Kingdom

Project Description

Oxford Street is known as London's most popular shopping street and as one of the most important in Europe in regard of turnover. A fitting place for the flagship store of John Lewis, a major chain of high-end department stores operating throughout the United Kingdom. The John Lewis Oxford Street offers an excellent assortment of household products and clothing as well as several restaurants in a seven-storey building.

Lindner Interiors Ltd. was contracted with the supply and installation of a custom hook-on ceiling for the exterior walkway around the shop. The high-gloss surface of type TOUCHdesign Lunar made of hammered stainless steel gives a three-dimensional character, creating a fragmented image of colours and shapes of the building and the passengers.
